

A visit from the little wolf

2|3

On Sunday a little wolf sneaks into the empty kindergarden, He sniffs at the toy cars. He sniffs at the red, blue and yellow glass beads. He sniffs at a wooden goat and thinks to himself: "I want to stay here!"

4|5

Then he discovers a tower made of blocks. He climbs up, but then ... crash! The tower collapses and the little wolf tumbles to the floor! He slips into a soft slipper and falls asleep.

6|7

On Monday morning the little wolf is awoken by the loud voices of children. He darts quickly under the cupboard and the slippers of the children clatter past him, as well as the big blue gym shoes of Miss Sonja.

8|9

The little wolf hears the children's laughter. He peeks out carefully from under the cupboard. The children are making music. They are skipping and dancing and singing a song about a goat.

10|11

During the night all the children have disappeared. The little wolf climbs on to a table. He takes paper and a paintbrush and begins to paint. Softly he hums the song about the goat that he likes so much.

12|13

On Tuesday a roll of sticky tape rolls under the cupboard towards the little wolf. He pushes the roll back. Then he sees how the children are stretching big sheets of corrugated cardboard round two of the tables. They are making a ship.

During the night the little wolf tries to do a jigsaw puzzle.
But what's that, that smells so good?

16 | 17

On Wednesday the little wolf hears Miss Sonja scolding:
"Who has been nibbling at the birthday cake?" But then she decorates the cake with new candy lowers. The children draw and write their wishes on little paper flags. They stick these into the cake and sing a birthday song for Anna.

18 | 19

"Tonight I want to write too", thinks the little wolf and he looks for coloured pencils. He writes and draws until the following morning. It is Thursday. The children rush noisily into the playhouse.

20 | 21

In one leap the little wolf jumps into a half opened drawer.
Just at that moment Miss Sonja arrives. She murmurs:
"The children should be tidier" and she closes the drawer.
"Ouch!". The wolf has stuck his paw in the drawer.

22 | 23

Luckily he is able to free his paw and stick his nose out of the drawer. He sees a small witch setting the table.
A magician is cutting carrots. Two children are quarrelling over a wolf's mask. The little wolf finds this funny.

24 | 25

During the night the little wolf assembles the wooden railway lines and lets the trains run. He builds a tower, a railway station and a stable for the goats.

26 | 27

On Friday the little wolf pricks up his ears as he listens to Miss Sonja telling the story of Red Riding Hood. He likes fairy tales. But he doesn't want to hear about the hunter with the rifle. He covers his ears with both paws.

28 | 29

During the night the little wolf takes all the picture books down from the shelf and looks at them for a long time, one after the other.

30 | 31

“Why is it so quiet today?” wonders the little wolf on Saturday. A big broom is pushed under the cupboard and it pulls the little wolf out of his hiding place. The cleaning lady calls out: “How pretty, a little wolf! I'll put him in the doll's pram!”

32 | 33

On Sunday the little wolf is left in peace. He cooks a fine alphabet soup on the doll's cooker ...

34 | 35

And he invites all the dolls, soft toys and wooden goats, whom he now loves so fondly, to a party!
